

Rewarding Learning

General Certificate of Secondary Education
2022

Centre Number

--	--	--	--	--

Candidate Number

--	--	--	--

English Language

Unit 4

Personal or Creative Writing and Reading Literary and Non-Fiction Texts

MV18/ML

[GEN41]

FRIDAY 10 JUNE, MORNING

Time

1 hour 45 minutes, plus your additional time allowance.

Instructions to Candidates

Write your Centre Number and Candidate Number in the spaces provided at the top of this page.

You must complete the tasks in the spaces provided.

Do not write on blank pages.

Complete in black ink only.

Complete four tasks: one task in Section A and the three tasks in Section B.

Information for Candidates

The total mark for this paper is 150.

Section A (Writing) One task marked out of 88 marks.

Spend 55 minutes on this section.

Section B (Reading) Three tasks marked out of 62 marks.

Spend 50 minutes on this section.

This paper contains an insert for use with Task 2.

Pay attention to the suggested timings shown at the beginning of each task; these will enable you to complete all the tasks within the time limit.

Figures in brackets printed at the end of each task indicate the marks available.

Examiners can only credit what they can read. Keep your work legible.

Section A: Personal or Creative Writing

One Task: Spend 55 minutes on your response.

Mark allocation: 88 marks

Up to 58 marks are available for an organised piece of personal or creative writing that matches form with purpose to engage the specified audience.

Up to 30 marks are available for the use of a range of sentence structures and accuracy in spelling, punctuation and grammar.

Complete only ONE task.

Either

(a) Personal writing: Write a personal essay for the examiner describing your dream destination.

Or

(b) Creative writing: Write a creative essay for publication in your school magazine. The picture below is to be the basis for your creative writing. You may provide your own title.

- Spend 15 minutes thinking and planning
- Spend 30 minutes writing your response
- Spend 10 minutes checking your writing

Planning Space:

Reading Non-Fiction

Tasks 3 and 4 are based on two extracts from a newspaper article:

“This article may be hard to stomach!”

Task 3: Spend 12 minutes on this task. Total 15 marks

The text on the page opposite is the beginning of the article.

Explain how the writer has gained and held the interest of the reader. [15 marks]

This article may be hard to stomach!

Growing up in a family of seven children meant that every day required parental planning of military grade precision. Bathtimes were carnage. Bedtimes were chaotic, and mealtimes... Well, mealtimes were an interesting experience. Mum proclaimed that she peeled, boiled and mashed “three bags of spuds” a night to feed our voracious little mouths. Despite the fact there was never enough to satisfy us, my mum always succeeded in getting us a “decent feed”.

Now that I’m a dad, I despair that the challenges of getting Child A to a friend’s house, Child B to football practice and Child C to the judo dojo have led to my kids’ mealtimes being more about something convenient that you can throw in the oven or zap in the microwave, than a freshly prepared, nutritious plate of food.

Convenience food and ready meals are everywhere – and that’s despite the countless tales warning of the dangers. I dread to think of the damage I may be doing to my children.

Have I become a processed parent?

Task 4: Spend 12 minutes on this task. Total 15 marks

The text below is the final four paragraphs from the same article.

Explain how the writer has developed his negative view of ready meals. [15 marks]

Fancy a chicken korma for tonight's dinner? Take a stroll up any aisle of the supermarket and you'll be spellbound by the vivid range of colourful packaging presenting a healthy and filling meal, or perhaps you will be tempted by the mouth-watering image of a plateful of golden curry on a bed of gleaming, saffron rice.

But don't kid yourselves, folks! The grotesque gloop you'll actually end up with, after it's been 'nuked' for five whole minutes, will look like dog food and wood-shavings and will taste even worse. So, why then are we, as a nation of well-informed individuals, so ready to suspend disbelief and be fooled into the notion that these pre-prepared poisons are a suitable option for family dinners?

We need to make a stand against the bosses running the convenience food empire who believe they have the perfect recipe for huge profits. They need to see that we will no longer be duped into believing that these are a nutritious or tasty alternative to a good old-fashioned, freshly prepared meal!

What price will we have to pay for these inadequate, cheap alternatives?

This is the end of the question paper

Source:

Photo of Rock Climbers © Getty Images

Permission to reproduce all copyright material has been applied for.
In some cases, efforts to contact copyright holders may have been unsuccessful and CCEA will be happy to rectify any omissions of acknowledgement in future if notified.

13182.09 MV18/ML

Rewarding Learning

General Certificate of Secondary Education
2022

English Language

Unit 4: Personal or Creative Writing and Reading Literary and Non-Fiction Texts

MV18/ML

[GEN41]

FRIDAY 10 JUNE, MORNING

This insert is for use with Task 2

Text A

I could see him waiting for me outside the steel school gates.

Roy.

He was leaning against a lamppost, his arms folded. From the second-floor window behind my desk I couldn't make out the expression on his face. But the way he was slumped against that lamppost suggested he was bored.

Good. Bored was good. If Roy was bored, he wouldn't be suspecting anything.

'Hey, Theo,' my mate Jake whispered. 'Twenty seconds until "Operation Liberate Theo" commences.' His eyes were fixed on the stopwatch function on his phone – he'd synchronised it with the school bell earlier to make sure I'd have a fast getaway.

I rolled my eyes, pretending I was way too cool to be excited. But the truth was my heart was pumping like it might burst. This was my first serious attempt to escape from Roy. I mean I'd tried – and failed – to run away from him before. But this was the first time I'd planned out an actual escape route.

'Fifteen...fourteen...thirteen...' Jake said excitedly.

I glanced towards the front of the classroom.

'Eleven...ten...'

The teacher was writing on the whiteboard.

‘Eight...seven...six...’

My books were already in my bag. I picked it up off the floor and slid it silently onto my back.

‘Three...two...one. Good luck, Theo!’

I leapt to my feet. I stormed towards the door. Wrenched it open. Sped down the corridor. Other classes were spilling out. I pounded down...down the stairs to the ground floor. Lots of Year Eights and Nines were jostling and shoving their way across the hall.

But I was bigger.

Faster.

Stronger.

Adapted from “Blood Ties” by Sophie McKenzie

Text B

Footsteps.

Running.

Graham didn't hear them at first.

He was walking fast, eating from his bag of hot chips as he went. Taking a detour via Reglan Street. The kind of street his parents had warned him never to be in. The kind of street where your footsteps echoed loudly, too loudly – because there was no one else about.

From either side the dark openings of the building stared at him. It was the beginning of May and fairly bright at this time in the evening. But even so...

Graham glanced around. The sky was densely overcast and shadows were gathering. He shouldn't have lingered so long after football training.

At that moment noise and shouting erupted behind him and Graham knew right away that he was in trouble.

Footsteps.

Running.

Coming down Reglan Street. Hard. Desperate.

Pounding on the ground. Beyond them, further away, whooping yells and shouts. Graham turned. A frightened teenage boy was racing towards him. As Graham watched, the boy stumbled, tripped and fell. Tried to get up. Then, groping in his pocket, brought out a mobile phone. Started to stab at buttons. Looking around in panic.

At the end of Reglan Street nearest the playing fields, a gang of huge shadows danced. The outline of the hunters – distorted and elongated against the bright floodlights. Graham saw them gather together, become one monstrous creature, then break apart. Their twisted shapes thrown out ahead of them as they came. Seeking. Searching.

Graham's legs stopped working. He was too far from the main road. Too far to run. The gang would catch him easily.

The teenage boy got to his feet. Faltered. Went past Graham. Limping.

Now Graham was caught. Trapped between pursuer and pursued.

Adapted from “Divided City” by Theresa Breslin

Sources:

Text A: "Blood Ties" by Sophie McKenzie (ISBN: 978-1847382757) Published 07 July 2008
© Simon & Schuster Children's UK

Text B: "Divided City" by Theresa Breslin (ISBN: 978-0385607674) Published 05 May 2005
© Doubleday Children's Books an imprint of Penguin Random House Children's UK

Permission to reproduce all copyright material has been applied for.
In some cases, efforts to contact copyright holders may have been unsuccessful and CCEA will be happy to rectify any omissions of acknowledgement in future if notified.