It is hard to deny that the media has a huge influence on young people nowadays. The influence of the media is growing because of the growth of technology.

Young people nowadays spend too much time using technology such as mobile phones and laptops; and they can access the internet at the touch of a button.

There are certainly advantages to the development of technology, unfortunately there are many disadvantages too. Young people like to copy what they see on the internet.

Celebrities can put pressure on young people because they want to be like them and they want to look cool amongst their friends. This leads to problems such as drug and alcohol abuse, eating disorders and bullying.
