

Our Group Work Rules:

Read through the list of possible rules for doing a group work activity.

Some are obviously wrong. An example of this is given at the start.

In your group, talk about these rules and decide if each rule is true or false.

There are spaces at the end to add your own suggestions.

Choose the top five rules you think are the most important and copy them in the space below.

Use these rules when your group talks together.

After your talk, check to see if your rules worked well, or if you'd change anything to improve them.

Update your rules if you think your group could have a better discussion next time.
