

Scenario

You are out shopping for a new T-shirt. You have £10 from your birthday money to spend. You can get an attractive shirt for £5 and have half your money left or you can buy an equally attractive one that costs £9.50. When you look at the labels you discover that the cheaper one was made in a country where you know children often work long hours in factories. Which one will you buy?

Kittichet / iStock Collection / Thinkstock