

Resource 4 (Activity 3)
Stepping Stones

Resource 5 (Activity 3)

Scenario Cards

Sometimes events happen that are completely out of our control, which mean that we have to change our original plans. Here are some examples:

Someone is going to play guitar with her band at an important gig and she breaks her arm the day before.

A pupil misses the class prize he was destined to receive as he didn't have time to revise because the family moved house the weekend before.

A footballer gets injured and is unable to play in the final.

The swimmer is about to win and gets cramp, so doesn't qualify for the regional event.

Someone queues for five hours for tickets for a concert they've been planning to go to for months. The last ticket is sold to the person ahead of them in the line.

A ten pound note slips from someone's pocket without them knowing, so they can't get into the cinema when they arrive.

They didn't realise in advance that the outfit they wanted to wear to a special event doesn't fit them properly anymore.

Your best friend pulls out at the last minute when you'd planned to go to a new youth club together where you don't know anybody.

You've arrived in Spain for a week's holiday and get measles the next day.

You're looking forward to going to the water park and when you arrive you're too small to go on the rides.

You get the pet cat you've wanted for ages, then find out that you're allergic to cats.