

Resource 1 (Activity 1) Integrity Cards (1 of 3)

1. Alison found £10 lying on the football pitch at school and handed it into the office.

2. Chris didn't like the way boys in his class disrupted lessons by shouting out and making comments that annoyed the teacher, but he went along with it and joined in because otherwise he would have no friends in class.

3. Conor found Brendan alone in a corridor huddled in a corner. Jim, Gavin and Stephen, the loud, popular boys, had been taunting him yet again because he was shy and not very confident. They were able to manipulate teachers by being charming and witty, so they continued to get away with being cruel, thoughtless bullies for their own entertainment. Conor decided enough was enough. He went and reported the incident, and all the other times he'd seen Jim, Gavin and Stephen being bullies, to the principal.

4. Frances received a parcel containing DVDs and CDs that she really liked. After opening it, she realised that it was actually for someone else, but the wrong address had been put on it. She decided that she wouldn't be able to trace the person, so kept them anyway.

5. Mr Watson realised that he'd wrongly accused Declan of talking in class and apologised to him in front of all the other pupils.

6. Patrick fouled a defender on the pitch, and as a result managed to score a goal. The referee didn't see so he wasn't going to admit it, even though the other player was complaining!

7. Mrs Robson still hadn't marked the class's projects six weeks after the deadline date, yet she'd made such a fuss about the work having to be in on time. If anyone dared ask about the projects, she shouted at them for being rude and insolent.

8. Sam, Matthew and Anna had to work together on a science project. Anna couldn't be bothered helping, but then insisted on doing the class presentation, so that she could receive the praise.

9. Aaron downloaded most of his coursework from the Internet, just changing a few bits to make it less obvious. He was about to give it in, then went and found his teacher and admitted what he'd done.

10. Sarah was the team captain, and was so happy when her team won the tournament! The captain usually goes up onto the stage to receive the cup, but Sarah insisted that Paula go because she had been the star player.

11. Mr Jackson has always treated his form class with a lot of respect. When he has to take an important phone call he tell the class that he is leaving them unsupervised to get on with their work as he knows he can trust them to do it. As soon as he leaves the room, several pupils start throwing pens around the room and one pupil goes up to Mr Jackson's desk and starts looking through the drawers.
